

Tunc dicitur dicitur a die... in p[re]s[ent]ia... [The text is a dense Latin manuscript, likely a legal or ecclesiastical document, containing numerous names and titles. It appears to be a record of a proceeding or a formal declaration. The text is written in a cursive hand and is somewhat faded and difficult to read in many places. It mentions various individuals and their roles, possibly related to a church or a specific legal case.]

At ego... [This block contains a shorter section of text, possibly a signature or a specific declaration related to the main document. It includes the name of the person writing and some details of the document's creation.]

